The stereopticon views were especially good, and were mostly made by Japanese artists from pictures taken by Dr. Jofferlis and his party, and members of the party appeared in many pictures. Some of the views in India, of the old palaces of the Maharajas and the splendid magnificence of the old life before the coming of the English, were pictured by the speaker for the first time, as in many of the interior points in India it is still very difficult oget permission to make pictures.

Some of the water scenes showed exceptional artistic ability in fine color effect of a kind of work done only by Japanese artists. The lecture was a clear-running account of the trip, and was greatly enjoyed by those present.
